Mary N. Harrison²

Good neighbors make a good neighborhood.

A good neighborhood has:

- Privacy.
 - Quiet, no noise pollution.
 - Controlled children and pets.
- Safety.
 - There is no fear of verbal or physical abuse.
 - Children play outside without harm.
 - Cooperative residents respect their property and the rights of their neighbors.
 - No stray or unsupervised animals.
 - Crime free.
- Appearance.
 - Premises are clean and orderly.
 - No junked vehicles.
 - No overflowing trash.

You are a good neighbor when you:

- Keep your home neat and clean.
- Make sure there is no trash or clutter in your yard including bottles, packages and garbage.
- Keep lids on trash containers, avoid overflowing containers and promptly remove the trash containers after trash and garbage collection.
- Supervise children so they do not annoy others, vandalize or destroy property. Don't yell or scream at children.
- Manage pets so they do not roam, cross into other's yards for "bathroom breaks," bark or create a nuisance. Control your pets.
