Creating Memorandums of Understanding/Agreement with Affiliate Organizations of 4-H

Marilyn N. Norman and Joy C. Jordan

A Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) or a Memorandum of Agreement (MOA) has become a tool to articulate and recognize collaborations and partnerships between affiliate organizations that provide support to the 4-H Youth Development Program of Cooperative Extension Service (CES) and 4-H.

4-H Programs at the national, state, and county levels partner with and create many affiliate volunteer-based groups. These groups often are organized specifically to promote and carry out the mission of the 4-H program. Therefore, they need to have written authorization to use the name and emblem. An MOU can provide this authorization and give more details on the rights and responsibilities that are associated with the use of the 4-H Name and Emblem.

A Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) is simply a written agreement to identify the working relationships and guidelines between collaborating or patterning entities. An MOU spells out the common understandings. It clarifies what kind of support will be provided and creates more meaningful ways for communication or participation. It defines the rights and responsibilities of each involved entity. Sometimes an MOU is also called a Memorandum of Agreement (or MOA). MOUs and MOAs are sometimes used interchangeably.

Here are some typical components of an MOU, with sample language:

Purpose and Agreement(s)

The memorandum should state the purpose and goals of the collaboration or partnership between the two entities. The specific agreements should be detailed into separate paragraphs or listings along the lines of "What [X Agency] Will Do" and "What [Y Group] Will Do."

Duration or Term of Memorandum and Termination Process

The memorandum should identify the beginning and ending dates of the agreement or its duration.

Example:

This memorandum shall commence on [date] and shall continue for period of [ending date/number of years].

or

This MOU will remain in effect until modified or terminated by any authorized official of 4-H and [affiliate group].

The memorandum should also identify how the MOU can be terminated.

The Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences (IFAS) is an Equal Employment Opportunity – Affirmative Action Employer authorized to provide research, educational information and other services only to individuals and institutions that function without regard to race, creed, color, religion, age, disability, sex, sexual orientation, marital status, national origin, political opinions or affiliations. For information on obtaining other extension publications, contact your county Extension Service office. The Florida 4-H Program is the youth development program of the Florida Cooperative Extension Service/Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences/University of Florida/Millie Ferror-Chancy, Interim Dean.
Example:

This memorandum may be terminated by either party giving the other party [three months'] notice in writing.

In addition, the memorandum should identify amendment processes.

Example:

This memorandum may be amended or varied from time to time if such amendment or variation is evidenced in writing and signed by the parties.

Meetings and Reporting

An MOU describes the interaction between the other organization and the County 4-H Program. It provides a structure, such as a specific meeting time, or the "as needed" informal expectations of either party. It is also a way for parties to specify their reporting needs and timeframes.

Example:

To accomplish the purpose and objective set forth in the MOU, partners will meet at least [twice] a year.

Financial Considerations

The financial or funding support situation should be explained. Someone may need to take responsibility for financial record keeping and reporting. Specify who will review and approve expenditures and financial decisions on behalf of the collaboration, if needed.

Here are a few examples of statements for program collaborations or partnerships where funding is not part of the agreements:

Nothing in this MOU shall be deemed to be a commitment or obligation of funds from either 4-H or [affiliate group] (or any of their various components).

The entities acknowledge that all or any financial arrangements must be negotiated and will depend upon the availability of funds.

Whoever has budget approval and oversight of the budget needs to be recognized, as well as who performs the audit and how often. Also, how the organization acts in accordance with required financial reports, such as filing IRS forms or other regulations, needs to be clearly outlined.

The MOU must discuss what measures are presently in place to prevent theft and/or fraud from happening.

Insurance is a large part of financial support, and should be discussed. If there is adequate insurance for the organization and the organization's activities, the person or people responsible for insuring need to be named. Proof of insurance also needs to be included.

If there are certain guidelines or regulations that need to be followed when accepting donor funds, they need to be recognized in an MOU and also show that the guidelines go along with the goals of 4-H as well as the specific event, program or organization.

Since an MOU describes an interaction between two organizations, it is vital that Board of Directors and all event managers are correctly indemnified.

Signatures with Dates

Once the MOU is prepared and agreed upon by parties involved, it should be signed and dated by the authorized individuals representing each partner or organization. Copies should be kept in an easily accessible location by both entities.

The Value of Preparing an MOU with Affiliate 4-H Groups

In addition to officially recognizing 4-H Affiliate Groups and authorizing their use of the 4-H Name and Emblem, an MOU is important because it:

Sets a better tone for participation. Creating an MOU makes both partners more familiar with the 4-H Name and Emblem regulations.

Negotiating an MOU raises both entities' awareness about their responsibilities to involve the other entity in decisions or program policies. It also gives organized program participants the opportunity to define participation in ways that are truly meaningful to them.
Builds a stronger working relationship. The process of actually negotiating an MOU helps participant entities and 4-H/CES faculty build a better working relationship, better listening skills, and more empathy for the issues that the other group faces. Participants develop a better understanding of the challenges the 4-H Program deals with—for example, working with limited budgets. Likewise, the 4-H Program staff develops a better understanding of the problems clientele groups and community organizations face and their ideas for solutions that will work in their community.

Sets up a structure for a partnership. An MOU puts the partnership between the other organization and the County 4-H Program in writing. It provides a structure for a working relationship. For example, the MOU can establish a specific meeting time, which may be preferable to relying on the "as needed" informal expectations of either party.

Clarifies how regulations will be interpreted. While state policies and rules may provide a framework for clientele participation, an MOU can clarify how your program will carry out its responsibilities under these policies and rules. For example, guidelines say the County 4-H Program must ensure "open communications" with the clientele organization. An MOU can clarify that "open communications" will be defined as access to specific documents, advance notice of any changes in policies, and responses in writing from the County 4-H Program to written comments submitted by a clientele group or organization.

A specific example of the regulations that may need to be explained in an MOU is the use of the 4-H Name and Emblem in marketing and promoting programs. An MOU provides a means to clarify how and under what conditions affiliated groups can use the 4-H Name and Emblem.

Protects organizations' rights over time. Your current organization may have a good working relationship with the current program director of a given community group, but what if a new director comes in who is less open to participant involvement? Or what if the leadership in the clientele organization changes and becomes less democratic? An MOU protects both groups over time, because it makes it clear that the group has certain rights no matter who is in the current leadership role.

Resources

For additional resources on authorizing groups to use the 4-H Name and Emblem, and for samples of MOUs, go to the Faculty and Staff section of the Florida 4-H website at http://www.florida4h.org.

For additional resources on financial and fiscal accountability of 4-H Clubs and Affiliate Groups, refer to the 4-H Financial Management Fact Sheets (4H 5.0 through 4H 5.8) or Section 5 of the Florida 4-H Program Handbook, which is located in the Faculty and Staff section of the Florida 4-H website at http://www.florida4h.org.
The following are examples of templates with sample language for Memorandums of Understanding (MOU). Please note that other sections may need to be added, depending on the nature of the agreement and the parties involved. The duties and responsibilities of each party should be clearly defined. Please state what is to be done or what is expected in plain, simple language. Be specific about any financial or other resource obligations of each party and include the dates when the actions are to be taken and completed. Be sure to include a statement regarding the use of the 4-H Name and Emblem, the rights and responsibilities that entails, and the conditions under which this use may be revoked and this memorandum terminated.
