

LOVE IN THE EOCENE

Florence Laurent

“My submission showcases the research I’ve gathered while working in the Paleobotany sector of Florida’s Natural History Museum. A key aspect of my work includes imaging fossils from the Eocene period, which date back millions of years. This fossil fragment, resembling a heart, symbolizes the enduring nature of love through Earth’s history. While much in nature is transient, love remains in stasis.”