

From the Editor

The Florida Geographer is the official publication of the Florida Society of Geographers and is distributed free to members of the society. It is a statewide journal, with coverage of geographical topics relating to the state. Manuscripts should deal with some social science or physical geography aspect of Florida or include Florida as an important component of a larger study.

Manuscripts are solicited from all who feel they have research worthy of dissemination. For matters of style, see articles in the present issue. Authors should not be dissuaded from submitting articles for review because of format considerations.

Authors should submit the final copy of the paper on an IBM-compatible diskette (3.5") in either double or high-density format. WordPerfect files are preferred; if not, please save files in ASCII (DOS text file) format.

This issue of the journal was desktop published using Pagemaker 6.0 on a LaserJet printer.
