

CONTRIBUTORS TO THIS ISSUE

David J. Bynum is a graduate student at the University of Florida. His interests include economic and cultural geography and historical cartography.

Alan Craig is a professor of geography at Florida Atlantic University.

John A. Cross is an assistant professor of geography at the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh. His research interests are in natural hazards. He received his Ph.D. degree from the University of Illinois in 1979.

Michal L. LeVasseur is an instructor of geography at the University of South Florida. Her major interests are physiography and environmental studies. She received her M.A. degree in geography at U.S.F. and is currently pursuing her Ph.D. degree.

Robert B. Marcus is a professor at the University of Florida. His interests include the geography of Florida and physical geography.

Raymond K. Oldakowski (M.A., University of Florida, 1982) is currently a Ph.D. candidate in geography, and project coordinator for the Survey Research Laboratory, University of Illinois. Research interests include migration determinants and municipal fiscal impacts of population redistribution.

Harry J. Schaleman, Jr. is an associate professor of geography at the St. Petersburg Campus of the University of South Florida. His interests include cultural and regional geography. He received his B.S. from Miami University (Ohio), M.A. from the University of Cincinnati, and did additional graduate work at Columbia University.

Dwight M. Stowers is a professor of geography at the University of South Florida. His prime interests are meteorology and climatology. He received his doctorate from Duke University.

Morton D. Winsberg is a professor of geography at Florida State University. His interests include population, ethnic and racial settlement in cities, and Latin America. He received his Ph.D. from Florida in 1958.

