

CONTRIBUTORS TO THIS ISSUE

Cindy Aaronson is a senior at the University of South Florida, graduating with a degree in mass communications.

Afolabi A. Adedibu is a lecturer at the University of Ilorin, Nigeria. He received his Ph.D. in geography from the University of Florida in 1977. His current interest is in urban problems in Nigeria.

David R. Bowen is a U.S. Army captain, and an assistant professor in the Department of Earth, Space, and Graphic Sciences, U.S. Military Academy, West Point, NY.

John C. Catau received his Ph.D. from Michigan State University in 1973. His special interests are in urban, social, and population geography. At present he is an assistant professor at University of North Carolina, Charlotte.

Harold M. Elliott is an adjunct instructor of geography at Florida International University and a special project planner with the Coral Gables Planning Department.

Jeanne Fillman-Richards is a master's student in the Department of Geography at the University of Florida. She received a bachelor's degree in anthropology from the University of South Carolina.

Robert L. Keber is a Ph.D. candidate from the London School of Economics. Currently he is an assistant professor at Appalachian State University, Boone, North Carolina.

Storm L. Richards received his bachelor's in anthropology and his master's in geography from the University of Florida.

Ira Sheskin is an assistant professor of geography at the University of Miami, Coral Gables. He received his Ph.D. from the Ohio State University in 1977.

Drew Vella is a graduate of the master's program in geography, and the Master's of Business Administration program at the University of Miami.